English Language Editor

The Cambodia Development Resource Institute (CDRI) is a leading independent development policy research institute. CDRI produces independent, objective, high quality policy-relevant development research on six inter-related themes – agriculture, economics, education, environment, governance and health, as well as the cross-cutting issues of climate change adaptation, gender equity, and science and technology development.

To maximise the accessibility of its research and inform diverse audiences, CDRI produces a variety of publications such as working papers, research briefs, policy briefs and journal articles.

We are seeking to engage freelance native English-speaking language editors to help prepare manuscripts for publication.

Please email expression of interest, CV and proof of past editing work to the HR and Administration Unit, CDRI, P.O. Box 622, Phnom Penh Cambodia, or e-mail: hr@cdri.org.kh by 2 November 2018.

Only short-listed candidates will be contacted.
